

Arizona Compass 2050

What is Arizona Compass 2050?

Arizona Compass 2050 (the Compass) is an Arizona-wide initiative that brings together evidence, expertise, and diverse perspectives to explore how Arizona's economy can move toward being carbon-neutral by 2050—and to help decision-makers understand the opportunities, tradeoffs, and choices along the way

Why does this initiative matter now?

Today's choices have long lives

Infrastructure and investment decisions being made now can shape Arizona for decades

The future is uncertain

The Compass can help Arizona policy and decision-makers understand when changing conditions may warrant a course correction

Arizona's systems are interconnected

Energy, water, transportation, industry, land use, resources, and economic development cannot be considered independently

No organization has the whole picture

Utilities, governments, Tribes and Tribal Nations, businesses, not-for-profits, researchers, communities, and others each bring essential knowledge and perspectives

How does Arizona Compass 2050 Report?

Listen

- Engage stakeholders across Arizona

Synthesize

- Bring together existing studies, plans, data, and expertise

Explore

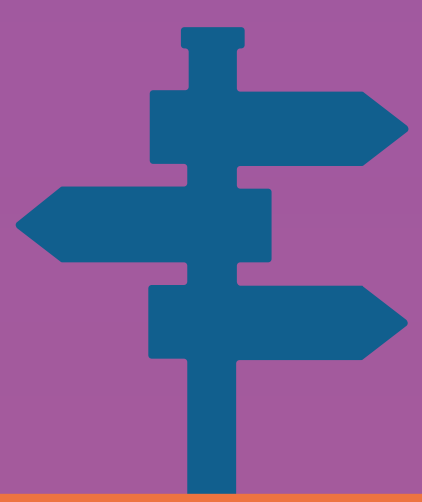

- Examine scenarios, opportunities, tradeoffs, dependencies, and uncertainties

Report

- Produce useful, accessible information for decision-makers and stakeholders

Track & Adapt

- Assess progress and identify when changing conditions may warrant course corrections

The Compass: Helping Navigate the Way, Not Prescribing the Path

Arizona Compass 2050 does not prescribe a single solution or pathway. It explores possible pathways for Arizona's economy to move toward being carbon-neutral by 2050, identifies indicators for assessing progress, and helps decision-makers understand when changing conditions or progress may warrant course corrections.

What will the Compass produce?

Public knowledge base

Relevant Arizona studies, data, plans, and analyses brought together in one accessible resource

Sector insights and briefs

Accessible findings on key parts of Arizona's economy.

Scenario narratives

Alternative futures that illuminate assumptions, opportunities, tradeoffs, and uncertainties

Progress indicators

Measures that help assess where Arizona's economy is headed and whether course corrections may be warranted

The Compass Report

An integrated, economy-wide synthesis of potential pathways, tradeoffs, implications, and findings

Built for Arizona Shaped by Arizonans

Arizona Compass 2050 brings together people who make decisions, people who study the choices, and people who experience their consequences
